

Henry County Medical Center became a core teaching site for Medical Students in August of 2016, beginning with three medical students from LMUDCOM. We have since advanced our affiliations with the addition of WCUCOM in 2018. Core medical students serve two years of clinical rotations.

Each year we accept 12 core medical students.

Physicians within our medical staff assist with the clinical and rotational requirements of the medical students. These physicians are key to the success of our program and were selected because of their willingness and expertise in enhancing the educational process for future physicians to this area. We know the students that graduate from our program will be a shining reflection upon their school, our organization, as well as our medical staff.

Amanda J. Finley, DO FACOI is the director of medical education and medical director of student affairs.

She was chosen as Preceptor of the Year 2016. She has served as clinical faculty and Associate Professor of Medicine for WCUCOM, NSUCOM, UP-KYCOM, LMUDCOM, and ICOM since 2013. She is active in research and publications and has two publications in the BMJ.
